The Avocado crew is here and ready to roll. Storyboards are just being finished, and the search has begun to cast our final main character. Let the Revenge begin...

2/13/07

After some initial difficulty casting our supporting actors, the Sweet Revenge crew has begun shooting. Everything so far has been great and so far, no major problems. Joining our crew is Conor Thorton, who will be assisting in filming and editing.

Sweet Revenge is constantly moving forward with its production. Shooting doesn't end at school either. One of the directors and one of the actors were working on the film in school during the February break going beyond the call of duty. Editing is also going along smoothly; we have a few scenes completely edited. Soundtrack is also being worked on to fit each scene, and add to the dramatics.

These guys have the hardest shooting schedule to work with because all three of their stars (Balkus, Sweet, and Murphy) are not available to shoot during class. Consequently, they've been forced to shoot most of their stuff after school. That being said, they have managed to keep up with an ambitious shooting schedule. And, more importantly, the footage thus far has been great! They have some very funny scenes. Mr. Balkus finally has a meaty role in which he can flex his acting ability in. Sweet and Murphy are hysterical together. Lots of great buzz surrounding this film. -Mr. Alan

When you talk about filming scenes, it's been a pretty slow week. But the editing is coming along great: just about all of the footage we have imported on the computer is edited, all we need for them is music. We still have some key scenes with Balkus and Sweet to shoot, and still awaiting an appearance from Mr. Jean and Mr. Connors. But we have a juicy schedule of filming this week with lots of great scenes still to come.

This week, we have promoted our assistant director, Chris Foti, to Co-Director (along with Laura Sacchetti). So far, we have shot a vast amount of footage, and our editing has gone along smoothly too. We plan to shoot Chris Jean's scenes this week.

It's crunch season for the Avocado team, and we are winding down on shooting. The last shots are ones with Chris Jean, and the concluding scene. Music will be worked on soon to complement the scenes. Special effects are added on at this point, and final changes are being made.

Last day of class, it's a sad day. But the new generation is on their way for John, Jack, Swanson is going to bring back the Avocado name, can we get a little sequel???? Son...anyways, great year, wish it could be longer, but we wouldn't change a thing. Thanks to everyone who helped us in our journey to make Sweet Revenge, maybe we'll make some cameos next year. This isn't a good bye... but a see ya later...son.
